Years have a similarity yet each is unique and different from another. Things that are so real and commonplace today may fade as time goes by. We are attempting to hold on to memories and keep 1961-1962 at Addison a reality. Here are the people, the happenings, the events, the sports, completely recorded to refresh your memories. Things change and disappear, or can be taken away but memories last forever.

Here's to old Addison,
Of all the others she is the one.

By June, 1962, the library owned 3400 books and subscribed to 35 magazines. It had an average circulation of over 500 books a week. One of the library's most popular innovations was a paper back bookstore. There books of sports, adventure, romance, science, history, and biography were sold to students. Another new feature was the vocational reading room used by both students and the school Counselor.

The 53 piece Addison High School band finally achieved its highest goal; that of a first division rating at the District Band Festival hosted by Addison's band and parents. This enthusiastic group started off in the fall by providing half-time shows for the home football games. The big event of the marching season was the participation in the U. of M. Band Day. The Tecumseh Band festival completed the marching season.

The concert band provided entertainment for the PTA and school Christmas programs. Eight of the band members were chosen for All-County Band, and the entire band took part in the program. Of the 34 participants in the solo-ensemble contest, 29 received I or II ratings. After much hard work, Winter and Spring concerts were successfully presented. May 31, found the band marching once again in the Memorial Day parade. The busy year was completed on graduation night, as the band played the processional and the recessional.

As a reward for work well done, the band took a boat trip to Bob-Lo Island in June.

Panthers Encounter Adverse Season

A plucky squad, lacking in both height and weight, represented Addison in football. Mike Storer, the weight of the line, moved away early in the season leaving an irreplaceable position. The boys showed remarkable determination and spunk; they probably played their best game against Morenci, Homecoming night. Although injuries and disappointments plagued them, they never conceded anything.

There was shouting and gaiety when Coach Ouellette was presented the Class "C" District Tournament trophy at Hillsdale College Field House.

Addison completed a very successful basketball season, finishing in second place in the LCAA and winning its third Class "C" District championship in the last four tries.

The Regional Tournament at Ypsilanti held some interesting turns of events. The first game was against Grass Lake High, coached by Curt Knowles a former Addison High Graduate. The Panthers staged a big fourth period to turn back the Warriors 64-53.

In the second try Addison faced Detroit All Saints, who had set a new scoring high for the State of Michigan this year by defeating Imaculate Conception 151-26. The tournament game was a close one all the way with the Saints winning it as the buzzer sounded 58-56. A left handed jump shot by an All Saint substitute was the ending of a hard and successful season.

We're for you all in one,
Old Addison!

Class of '62 wins again placing first for the third consecutive year.

The spirits of enthusiastic Addison students were slightly dampened when the weatherman did not cooperate with their Homecoming plans. Torrents of rain fell through the afternoon making it necessary to cancel the down-town parade. Floats were kept in storage until the half time of the Addison-Morenci game when they appeared as a soggy, rain-soaked, and wind-blown group. Some weathered the storm while others disintegrated in the strong gale. The long, hard working hours of preparation and planning were soon past history. The dependable fans, with blanket and raincoats, came regardless of weather to witness the event.

Eighth graders, "Squeeze out a Victory," to place first in their division.

Homecoming

A rain soaked Junior float grinds by the fans.

The winged foot of Mercury failed the Sophomores.

The judges took a quick look and placed the Senior float first in its division and the 8th Grade float first in its division. A large black Panther rotated on a huge red and white decorated cake to illustrate the theme of the Senior float, "Celebrate Our Victory." The 8th Grade float "Squeeze Out A Victory" depicted a large pink octopus squeezing a Morenci player. Placing second in the Senior division was the Sophomore float, "Fly On To Victory" and third, the Junior float, "Panthers Grind Them Up." In the Junior division was the Freshman float, "The Untouchable" and the 7th Grade float, "The Ladder to Success."

Don Miller squires shivering cheerleaders around the field.

Loyal fans came out to support the team and watch the half-time parade.

The Freshman float passes the reviewing stand all in one piece.

The north wind did blow as serious 7th graders displayed their "Ladder to Success."

The Senior Division lovelies Sharlene Brooks, Lila Lee and Sharron Ford ride past the reviewing stand.

Our 1961 Homecoming Queen is revealed as a gift of red roses is presented to her by our football co-captains.

Co-Captains, Roger Boley and Mike McCance, crown Lila Lee Queen of The Homecoming while Sharron Ford and Diane Derickson look on approvingly.

The 1962 J-Hop, "Winter Wonderland," twirled its way into Addison's history, January 27. Upon entrance into the gym - turned 'ballroom' for the night - a revolving myriad sphere casting thousands of reflections over the entire floor, was the first attraction to catch one's eyes. Mr. Pierce, assisted by members of the Junior class planned and constructed the complete ball.

Even the frosty snowmen and skaters upon the pond seemed ready to perform to the sometimes 'lively', but oftentimes 'sentimental', music of Sam Sarri's Quintet.

Representatives from each class and the service organizations met weekly to discuss the various problems and activities of the student body.

This year representatives from member schools of the LCAA, Addison, Clinton, Hudson, Madison, Morenci, and Onsted, organized and devised a system of points for a good-sportsmanship trophy for our league competitive events in athletics.

RUTHANN PICKELL, Salutatorian

As we, the graduating class of 1962, marched up the aisle to this stage during the processional to take part in the traditional graduation ceremonies, we were labeled high school "kids." Within the hour we will again be marching down the same aisle, but this time there will be a striking difference with our diplomas in our hands we will be high school graduates. We will be thought adults, and will be expected to take our places in the adult circles of life.

It is with a certain sadness we say goodbye to our carefree, sheltered days and step into this adult world. The glory and recognition we have achieved here cannot go with us. Still, the way we have spent the last four years will have a great bearing on how we make this transition into adulthood. The wisdom we acquired from our associations with teachers and students is as valuable as the knowledge we gained from our text. We have all grown physically, but more important, we have grown morally and mentally.

The step to adulthood is a big one, and can only be bridged by education. Education is more than learning; it is a way of life. What are the marks of an educated man? He is one who can see and solve problems, who knows how to work easily with others, who is willing to work and learn. He does not give up easily and will fight until the last battle is won. A battle which may be waged against crime, poverty, ignorance, war, or even against his own personal problems.

Education can never be taken from us. For men it is the means of securing a livelihood. For women it is a means of preserving civilization. A founder of an Eastern college once stated, "Educate a man and you educate an individual - educate a woman and you educate a family."

The family is the oldest and most important of the human institutions. As future parents, if we teach the child early that life is both happiness and sadness, poverty and wealth, joy and responsibility, success and failure, and, always, a process of learning, we will be educating another generation.

Now is the time we must set new and far-reaching goals. The future is ours if we will only be prepared to meet it. Among us tonight sits future nurses, doctors, teachers, engineers, and lawyers. Each of us in our own way is capable of contributing to the American way of life. By starting where we are with what we have, making something of it, never being satisfied, and always remembering that time is never lost that is devoted to work and learning, we can succeed. We must set our goals, then work toward them.

When we walk out of this auditorium tonight, we will be high school graduates, but more important, we will be preparing to become mature, responsible adults.

We, the class of 1962, are ready to take the step.

We want to be just like you. We want to grow up, take on mature responsibilities, and develop into citizens of which America can be proud. We realize that we are a long way from these goals, but, having confidence, we know that someday we will reach them.

So far, our taste of life has been gratifying. Naturally, we are seeking more of this gratification, we want to be someone, drive a car of our own to a home and family of our own. You, our teachers, parents, and friends have illustrated to us that hard work is essential for any kind of success. You expect us to suddenly step from the blessings of childhood to the whirling, thrashing life of adulthood. You know it can be done, for, not many years ago, you did the same thing. Now it is our turn to reveal our personalities and characters. As we look into the future, we find a foggy atmosphere, unclear and defineable. No one knows where we will have to go, what we will have to do, or how well we will perform these tasks. Perhaps that is the exciting part of living, waiting for the unexpected.

Nothing can duplicate the special feeling our class has for each other - our classmates, our friends for four, unforgettable years, and our constant companions. We have always depended on one another. No one shouldered all the blame or all the glory. That is the way it should have been. From now on, though, we will not have the backing of fellow students when difficulties appear. The solution to these problems will be up to us.

As always, the congratulations have been given left and right. It is considered polite to acknowledge the accomplishment of a graduate. Pleasing as this recognition is, it is small compared to the reward that comes from within, forming self-confidence and pride. You are glad when you receive this praise. So are we. Most of you have taken this step, so you know how we feel right now - very happy, very confused, and very, very proud. It is one of the biggest moments of our lives.

We hope you will never forget us, not only our misdeeds and perhaps damaging adventures, but also our small contributions. We are proud to call Addison High School our school and hope you are proud to recognize us as a part of it. Even though we will go our own way, we will always be a unit - the Graduating Class of Addison High School of 1962! One phase of our young lives will soon be officially over. A chance to prove ourselves is next. We will try our best to accomplish this, to measure up to what is expected of us.
